

Shawn McCardle (and Family) -
The Gemini Screen Printing & Embroidery
Volunteer of the Year

The Gemini Screen Printing & Embroidery Volunteer of the Year award for 2012 is presented to a very deserving winner ... Shawn McCardle. While Shawn has his name of the award it is given with full recognition to the important part his family plays in this award.

Anyone who has attended the Brookvale Ultra run should understand why Shawn (and Family) deserve this award. How many race directors out there would like to trade races with Shawn? How would you like to have to set up a course that is 25K long, and requires you to tie a pink ribbon to a tree branch every 50 feet.

How would you like to have to spend many of your Sunday mornings before your race ... out leading training runs so participants could actually attempt your run?

How would like to have to summon every member of your family to help out with your race, because you realize that no one has friends good enough that they would voluntarily give up a whole day of their lives to stand out in the heat and humidity ... being eaten alive by mosquitos?

So race directors out there ... if you would like to trade places with Shawn ... maybe you'll get this award next year. Any takers?

Shawn (and Family) we would like to recognize your outstanding commitment and dedication to this race, and thank you for introducing many of us to the joys of off-road, trail running.

We would ask Laurie-Ann, and any other members of Shawn's family that may be present, to come up and share in this award.
